

Two Robots (Part 5)

- Oh.

- No, this is his fuel. This hole leads down to, like, a section of, like, to leads down to his computer, so you can take it out for maintenance.

- Oh, it's to his brain?

- Yeah. It leads to his--

- Does he feed it things, like food?

- No, he charges.

- This is his charge hole.

- No, this down, deep down in here is his computer. And you can take it out, and fix the computer, and then put it back in.

- Is that like his brain?

- Yeah, it's a artificial-- it's a simulated brain.

- Oh I, There would be-- so the computer would be down in here, right?

- Yeah, except pretend like there's walls here.

- But what if he wanted to grab something, like you said, this guy has hands?

- I know. Well, he doesn't really have hands.

- Does he-- you know what I bet he could do? Could I have an idea?

- What?

- Like, he can just think things. He can think he wants something, and it comes to him.

- Whoa!

- Wouldn't that be cool?

- That's magic!

- Oh! Maybe he's magic. Let's go write that down.